Android App Development Intern

- A Java-based programme called the Cricket Scorecard Game was created to mimic the cricket scoring process. The backend functionality of the programme is created using Java, while the user interface is created using XML.
- Java is used to implement the majority of the app's functionality. The player scores are managed by the Java code, among other things.
- XML is used in the design of the user interface to provide interactive interfaces that are both aesthetically pleasing and usable by users

PROJECTS

- Closet online

July 2022 – Oct 2022

Personal project

- Experience the ultimate fashion destination that React.js, HTML, and CSS have combined to create. This online store for apparel expertly combines technology and design to provide a superior buying experience. Navigate through user-friendly interface to discover a finely chosen selection of the newest trends. This platform is React.js-powered dynamic functionality and fluid navigation are supported by the HTML web, which provides a solid and responsive framework. The artistic finesse of CSS brings each element to life.

- Portfolio

Nov 2022 – Feb 2023

Personal Project

- A website that highlights my specific talents, projects, and successes was created using React.js, HTML, and CSS. Used ReactJS to create dynamic user interfaces, HTML gives the webpage its structure, and CSS handles style and layout. The project has several information-display elements, such as "About Me" section, a list of projects with descriptions, contact details. This mix of technology makes it possible to showcase my professional biography and accomplishments in a responsive, dynamic, and visually appealing manner.

- Breast Cancer Detection

Aug 2023 – Oct 2023
